

FELICITY ROGERS
BARRISTER
3 ST JAMES HALL CHAMBERS

Experience & Expertise

I was admitted to the NSW Bar in 2001 and currently practise in commercial and public law.

I came to the Bar after eight years as a lawyer in the Royal Australian Navy, specialising in international, operational and administrative law. In 1999, I deployed to Dili, East Timor as the maritime law adviser to the Commander of the International Force in East Timor.

I have appeared as both Counsel Representing and Counsel Assisting in coronial inquiries (both civilian and military) including an inquiry into a fatal helicopter crash in Nias, Indonesia.

I have undertaken complex inquiries in relation to complaints of harassment, mismanagement, bullying and inappropriate behaviour.

I have extensive experience in working with Government agencies.

I remain an active member of the Navy Reserve and am currently the Head of the NSW Navy Legal Reserve Panel
